HOW TO CHOOSE YOUR TABLE

HOW TO CHOOSE YOUR RASSON

Six tables. One standard. This guide gets you to the right one in about two minutes: by room, by how you play, and by the look you're after.

FIRST • THERE ARE TWO FAMILIES

TWO FAMILIES. ONE STANDARD.

Every Rasson is built to the same competitive standard. Where they split is slate thickness, cushion tuning, and how loudly the base wants to be seen.

THE 25MM LINE • CORE

Acurra • Hero • Ironman

Built to play seriously and live in a real room. Available in smaller sizes, in warm wood-grain or blacked-out finishes.

25mm 3-pc slate

7 / 8 / 9 ft

THE 30MM FLUOROCARBON
LINE • TOURNAMENT

OX II • Victory III • Wolf

The actual tournament hardware: thicker slate, MAX cushions, sculptural bases, and the LevelBox II leveling system. The tables you see under the lights.

ANSWER FOUR. YOU'RE DONE.

01

How much room do you have?

Only the Acurra and Hero come in 7ft, and both they and the tournament tables are available in 8ft. The Ironman is 9ft only. If space is tight, your shortlist is already short.

02

How serious is the play?

Rasson PRO cushions (Hero, Ironman) are dialed in for home and club nights. Rasson MAX cushions (Acurra, OX II, Victory III, Wolf) are the tournament response: the cushion that gives back exactly what you put in.

03

What's the look?

Warm wood-grain (Acurra, Hero). Blacked-out and commercial (Ironman). Sculptural fluorocarbon: the OX II's arched base, the Victory III's V-pedestal, the Wolf's angular legs.

04

Does the slate matter?

It does. 25mm three-piece on the Acurra, Hero and Ironman. 30mm three-piece plus LevelBox II leveling on the tournament line. More mass, more stability, more consistency rack after rack.

THE RANGE AT A GLANCE
